

Meet Hermon's Artists:

Adam Abada- "I was born in New York City and now call Northeast Los Angeles home. I'm a lifelong artist in many mediums - drawing, video, film, and painting, to name a few - and I always end up taking much of my inspiration from my immediate environment.

Bettina Hubby is an artist based in Los Angeles whose practice is grounded in humor, positive mind metaphysics, and exploration of the constantly changing, aspirational self. HubbyCo is the name and public-spirited hub of her practice, which is wide ranging. She works in collage, drawing, painting, sculpture, video, photography, and virtual reality projects.

Hello, my name is Nimue Llexim and I'm a 21 year old transgender artist and L.A.I.C.H.S alumni from up the road. I love this area, and it was thinking about my high school years here that inspired me to paint someone dancing on the bridge. Anyone passing through Hermon could spot the bridge but from just a drive but they would miss the tiny blue flowers growing on the side.

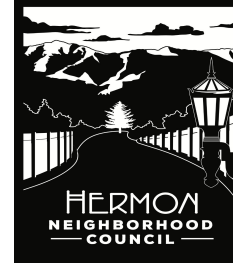

Sol Luongo is a local Los Angeles- based artist from Uruguay who paints, draws, and sculpts whimsical, magical and sometimes scary subjects. Some of her work can be seen at The Hive Gallery in DTLA and her latest mural inside of Republic of Lucha in South Pasadena.

Ella Young is a textile designer from Los Angeles. She loves botanical illustration, ethnographic textiles, and playful conversational prints. She is a graduate of Pasadena's Polytechnic School and Washington University in St. Louis, where she studied Fashion Design and Art History. Her industry experience is in print design and fabric R&D.

The Hermon Advance Team Presents:

Hermon Signal Box Beautification Project

Hermon Advance Team (HAT) is a community non-profit established in 2016. HAT exists to determine the needs and wishes of the Hermon community-- then pursuing those goals, and finding solutions to build a vital and empowered community through regular outreach and needs-based projects within Hermon.

Hermon Signal Box Tour:

#1. Park at Hermon Park. Walk south to Via Marisol crosswalk.

#2. “We Are Hermon” by Bettina Hubby at Via Marisol Crosswalk.
“My intention for this public painting for Hermon is to create an uplifting artwork that serves as a celebratory affirmation for the unity of the neighborhood. The use of positive, aspirational verbiage, can influence the mind of the passerby. The painting will be both a physical manifestation and a passive sender of experience, reminding us all of our strength through community through positive reinforcement.”

For next stop, continue up stairs. Go south on Bushnell Way. Turn left on Kendall Ave.

#3. “Birder Box” by Ella Young at Kendall Ave & Monterey Rd.

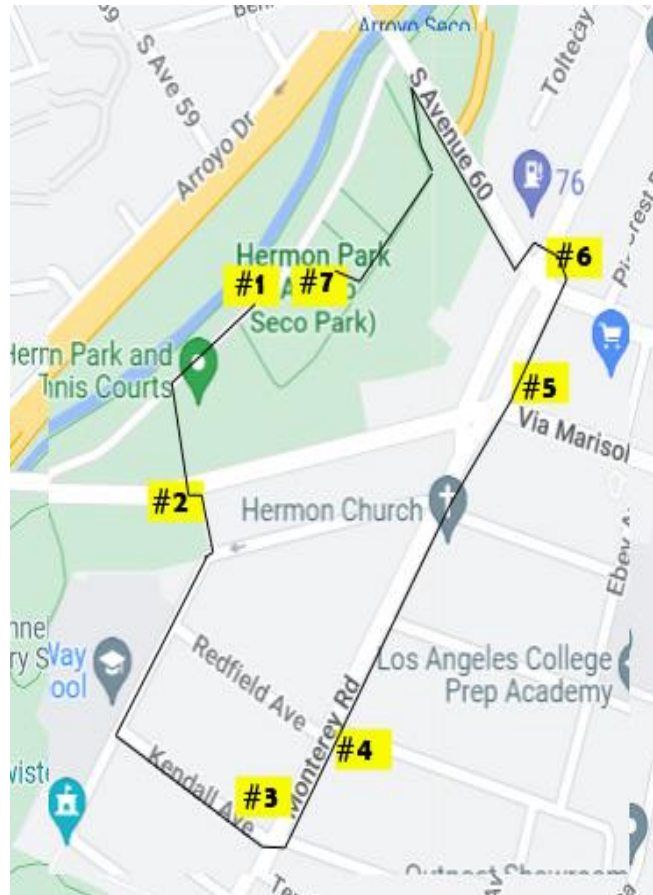

“During the past 2 years of work from home, I've discovered the joy of bird watching. As part of the neighborhood beautification project, I converted this box into a bird identification chart that includes 30+ local birds depicted to scale with common and scientific names. Hermon is home to more than people, and I hope this Birder Box will inspire passersby to learn about and observe our aviary neighbors.” *
To learn more about each bird, visit HAT's website & click on “Signal Box Project”.

#4. “Dancer on the Bridge” by Nimue Llexim at Redfield Ave & Monterey Rd.
“Anyone passing through Hermon could spot the bridge but from just a drive but they would miss the tiny blue flowers growing on the side. And the dancer I picked for my classmates, for the heritage living in Hermon, and because I absolutely love Folklorico dresses. I hope this installation will compel you to take a closer look at everything around you, especially if you're driving!”

#5. “The Arroyo Seco” by Adam Abada at Via Marisol & Monterey Rd.

“The Arroyo Seco seems hidden but is vital to Hermon’s ecosystem. Once you experience it, its impact is immediately important and is impossible to ignore. To me, Hermon is closely connected to the Arroyo Seco as a gateway for people into this natural waterway. I wanted to focus that right in the middle of town. I hope the colors and lines will mimic the light, views, feelings, and other natural beauties of the valley and, between its layers, reveal different levels of meaning - just like the Arroyo Seco.”

#6. “Dragon Pearl” & “Dragon Pearl Tail” by Sol Luongo at Ave 60 & Monterey Rd.

“So this is the dragon from the iconic Dragon Pearl restaurant that stood right at that corner. I wanted to paint him so that if you stood at the corner you could see his tail jump from one box and wrap on the other as if it was flying over the houses and through the streets. I wanted this piece to be visually appealing to someone just passing by while at the same time hold an extra layer of meaning for someone that grew up in the area.”

#7. Art in the Park Community Band

Art in the Park is excited to welcome back the Community Band with Logan Hone in person. The socially distanced band plays outside in Hermon Park every Saturday, as a series of creative musical sessions and concerts. Musicians of all skill levels & backgrounds are invited to join the band in learning an eclectic mix of music, including jazz, folk, & original material. Participation is free and registration is required. Bring your instrument, water, snacks, and a mask. Some percussion instruments will be provided. Every Saturday, 11:00 to 12:50.
